9. Defendants are subject to either general jurisdiction or specific jurisdiction in this district.

10. Defendants conduct substantial business in this district, including the sale of music, films, merchandise, and tickets for live performances.

11. For example, Ms. Swift’s “1989 World Tour” included a concert in Salt Lake City. One outlet reported the average cost of a ticket being $326 and noted that the average ticket price “tops all Utah Jazz games in that timespan, as well as concerts by One Direction, Justin Bieber, George Strait and many others”<sup>1</sup> between 2010 and 2015.

EVERMORE PARK

19. Plaintiff operates an immersive experience theme park (“Evermore Park”) in which performers who portray fantasy characters are the main attraction.

20. Evermore’s immersive experience includes a wide variety of actors and musicians that create a world of fantasy in which guests interact with performers.

21. Evermore has invested approximately $37,000,000 in the creation and promotion of Evermore Park and the EVERMORE Trademark. Exhibit A, Dec. of Ken Bretschneider at ¶ 2.

22. Much of this investment has come from Mr. Ken Bretschneider, Evermore’s CEO, for whom Evermore has been a life-long dream. As Mr. Bretschneider explained in an interview:

As a child I always felt escapism was a really important thing . . . . I grew up in a rough situation, with a very abusive father, but I had the wonderful opportunity of being around other people who were mostly artists. They helped me escape out of my negative world and embrace a positive one. That really meant a lot to me and set an important tone through my entire life.<sup>4</sup>

23. Beginning in 2008, Mr. Bretschneider began hosting a Halloween event for his community at his home in Lindon, Utah, that grew each year until, in 2013, 11,000 people visited Mr. Bretschneider’s home.<sup>5</sup> This was the beginning of Evermore, which hosted its first Halloween event in 2014 and began construction of Evermore Park in 2017.

25. Buzzfeed’s “Bring Me,” which reports on travel and entertainment, created a video about Evermore Park that, as of the time of the filing of this action, had been viewed more than 25,000,000 times, as shown in the screen capture below. The video has also generated more than 65,000 comments from viewers.<sup>9</sup>

DEFENDANTS' ADOPTION OF THE EVERMORE TRADEMARK

34. On December 11, 2020, Taylor Swift released an album titled Evermore (the “Evermore Album”).

35. Taylor Swift's description of the Evermore Album echoes descriptions of Evermore, including mirroring the unique term (i.e., "escapism") used by Ken Bretschneider to describe Evermore Park. Specifically, Ms. Swift writes in the booklet that accompanies the Evermore Album: "I loved the escapism I found in these imaginary/not imaginary tales. I loved the ways you welcomed the dreamscapes and tragedies of epic tales of love lost and found." A copy of this booklet is attached as Exhibit C.

36. Prior to Defendants' release of the Evermore Album, numerous published descriptions of Evermore referred to the "epic tales" that play out at Evermore Park, including in the following:

- (a) Role Play and Epic Quests at a Utah Theme Park, Arkansas Democrat Gazette, Dec. 23, 2018,<sup>11</sup>
- (b) This Is What Evermore Is Like, Utah Business Magazine, Aug. 16, 2019 ("[w]here else can you freely walk amongst thousands of ancient artifacts, embark on epic quests, or trade your beloved bow away to a stranger in a tavern?"),<sup>12</sup> and
- (c) Evermore: Utah's New Fantasy Theme Park Adds Summer Event, Amusement Park News, May 30, 2019 ("Themed like a European village, the park has buildings, characters, and an 'epic story'").<sup>13</sup>

53. A screen capture from Evermore Park's website is reproduced below and shows Evermore's offering of "ornamental cloth patches," "three-dimensional plastic ornaments," "purses," "all-purpose carrying bags," "key wallets," and "key pouches" offered under the EVERMORE Trademark.

54. The fact that every item depicted on Evermore’s website is explicitly covered by one of Defendants’ Trademark Applications is evidence of Defendants’ actual knowledge of Evermore’s prior adoption and use of the EVERMORE Trademark.

55. Ms. Swift is an “actor.”

56. Ms. Swift has acted in in numerous films, television series, and videos.

57. IMDB attributes 64 film credits to Ms. Swift and identifies Ms. Swift as an “actress,” and lists 64 videos in which Ms. Swift appeared as an “actress.”<sup>31</sup>

58. Among Ms. Swift’s works as an actor is the music video willow.<sup>32</sup>

DEFENDANTS’ ADOPTION AND USE OF THE EVERMORE TRADEMARK HAS RESULTED IN ACTUAL CONFUSION

64. Visitors to Evermore Park asked staff members whether the Evermore Album was the result of a collaboration between Evermore and Taylor Swift or some other type of relationship. Exhibit E, Dec. of Andrea Measom.

65. Evermore uses Google Analytics to track various metrics related to the website available at evermore.com. Exhibit F, Dec. of Jaren Tolman.

66. On the day that Taylor Swift announced the Evermore Album (i.e., December 10, 2020), web traffic on Evermore Park’s website, www.evermore.com, spiked 330.4% in comparison to traffic on the previous day (i.e., December 9, 2020). Exhibit G, Page 5 (showing 7,179 visitors on December 10, 2020) and Exhibit G, Page 4 (showing 1,668 visitors on December 9, 2020).

67. Metrics related to the traffic to www.evermore.com after December 10, 2020, deviated substantially from typical traffic. including a spike in the site’s “bounce rate,”<sup>33</sup> a shift in the “channels” through which users arrive at the website, and a change in the mix of new versus returning users.

<sup>33</sup> The service Evermore uses to monitor its web traffic, Google Analytics, defines “bounce rate” as follows: “Bounce rate is single-page sessions divided by all sessions, or the percentage of all sessions on your site in which users viewed only a single page and triggered only a single request to the Analytics server.” See <https://support.google.com/analytics/answer/1009409>. Further, Google explains in response to the question of whether a high bounce rate is “a bad thing,” “If the success of your site depends on users viewing more than one page, then, yes, a high bounce rate is bad. For example, if your home page is the gateway to the rest of your site (e.g., news articles, product pages, your checkout process) and a high percentage of users are viewing only your home page, then you don’t want a high bounce rate.” Id.

68. Selected metrics comparing December 2, 2020 to December 11, 2020 are shown below.

	December 2, 2020 Exhibit G, Page 2	December 11, 2020 Exhibit G, Page 6	Change <sup>34</sup>
Users	1,497	5,012	+234.8%
Direct Traffic	31.4%	73%	+132.5%
Bounce Rate	48.85%	76.28%	+56.2%
Avg. Session Duration	134 Seconds	60 Seconds	-55.2%

69. Evermore did not make any changes to its online marketing efforts during this period that would explain these changes. Exhibit F, Dec. of Jaren Tolman at ¶ 5.

70. Users of social media made direct association between Taylor Swift and Evermore Park. One example is illustrated below.

<sup>34</sup> Calculated by subtracting December 2 metric from December 10 metric, and dividing the result by the December 2 metric. For example, the calculation of the change in the “Users” metric is determined as  $5,012 - 1,497 = 3,515$ , and  $3,515 / 1,497 = 234.8\%$ .

Exhibit A, Dec. of Ken Bretschneider at ¶ 9.

74. The second page of search results on Google.com for the term “Evermore,” includes five (5) results relating to the Evermore Album and Taylor Swift and only one (1) result relating to Evermore (i.e., Evermore’s Facebook page). 75. Evermore will incur additional marketing and promotional costs as it strives to compete with the torrent of information related to the Evermore Album and Taylor Swift.

76. Within days of the release of the Evermore Album, Evermore sent a cease and desist letter (the “Cease and Desist Letter”) to Defendants. Exhibit D.

77. Counsel for Defendants responded to the Cease and Desist Letter on December 29, 2020, stating Defendants’ refusal to discontinue use of the EVERMORE Trademark, and claiming “[i]f anything, your client’s website traffic has actually increased as a result of the release of Ms. Swift’s recent album which, in turn could only serve to enhance your client’s mark.” Exhibit J, Ltr. from J. D. Baldrige to J. Cherry dated Dec. 29, 2020, at page 4 (emphasis in original).

78. Defendants’ claim that their use of the EVERMORE Trademark “enhance[s]” Evermore’s mark reflects a fundamental misunderstanding of trademark law, and similar arguments have been considered and flatly rejected:

Plaintiffs argue that Defendant’s contention that Plaintiffs are receiving a benefit from Defendant’s promotion of its trademark constitutes a misunderstanding of trademark law. The Court agrees. The Court finds that the loss sustained by a trademark holder from the unauthorized use of its trademarks is the loss of the trademark holder’s ability to control its reputation. In the context of trademark litigation, grounds for irreparable harm include loss of control of reputation, loss of trade, and loss of goodwill, regardless of whether the infringer is putting the mark to a good or favorable use. As the Liquid Glass Court<sup>[35]</sup> stated “while imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, it is equally true, especially in the context of trademark litigation, that flattery will often get you nowhere.”

Audi v. D’Amato, 341 F. Supp.2d 734, 746 (E.D. Mich. 2004) (internal citation and quotation marks omitted), aff’d 469 F.3d 534, 545 (6th Cir. 2006).

79. After receiving the Cease and Desist Letter, Defendants changed the title and URL of the “Evermore Merch” pages at store.taylorswift.com. See Footnotes 16-27, above.

<sup>35</sup> Liquid Glass Enter. v. Porsche AG, 8 F. Supp.2d 398, 406 (D.N.J. 1998).

80. Counsel for Defendants falsely claimed: “contrary to the assertion in your letter, the ‘merch’ on Ms. Swift’s website only contains pictures of Ms. Swift or album lyrics and is not identified as an ‘evermore’ collection. Even the URL where this merch is available makes no mention of ‘Evermore ....’” Exhibit J, at page 5.

81. Cached versions of Defendants’ website page showing “all collections,” dated December 13, 2020,<sup>36</sup> are available from Archive.org.

82. The “all collections” page shown on Defendants’ website includes “evermore merch,” as shown in the following image of store.taylorswift.com from Archive.org.

83. The text in the bottom right corner of the screen that appears when a user hovers the mouse over the “view products” button on the “evermore merch” is enlarged below, and shows “evermore-merch” included in the URL.

84. Teen Vogue reported on December 13, 2020 on Defendants’ release of “evermore’ Merch,” as shown in the following screen capture. Exhibit K.<sup>37</sup>

85. The claim made by counsel for Defendants that Defendants' website did not include "an 'evermore' collection" is false.

86. The claim made by counsel for Defendants that "[e]ven the URL where this merch is available makes no mention of 'Evermore'" is false.

87. The false claims made by Defendants and/or Defendants' counsel is an attempt to minimize Defendants' use of the EVERMORE Trademark.

88. Defendants have also falsely claimed that Evermore is bankrupt, which, even if true, does not provide a defense to Evermore's claims of trademark infringement.

89. In telephone conversations, counsel for Defendants strongly insinuated that Defendants' refusal to address Evermore's claims is at least partially based on the belief that Evermore lacks the financial resources to pursue its claims due to the Coronavirus pandemic.

90. Counsel for Defendants has made multiple references in written communications to Evermore's "financial difficulties due to the COVID-19 pandemic." Exhibit L, Ltr. from J. D. Baldrige to J. Cherry, dated January 11, 2021.

91. In addition, Taylor Swift has repeatedly sought to portray herself in the public as a defender of artists, and, in particular, struggling artists. For example, Ms. Swift criticized Apple's decision to offer a three-month free trial of Apple Music, stating: "We don't ask you for free iPhones. Please don't ask us to provide you with our music for no compensation."<sup>38</sup>

92. In her recent appearance at the Sundance Film Festival, Ms. Swift spoke about her public battle with her former record label over ownership of music, stating: "Well, I do sleep well at night knowing that I'm right, and knowing that in 10 years it will have been a good thing that I spoke about artists' rights to their art ...."<sup>39</sup>

93. Despite her publicly stated concerns for small and struggling artists facing larger and better-funded opponents, such as Apple and the record labels, Ms. Swift now seeks to bury the previously released Evermore albums created by Evermore and misappropriate the EVERMORE Trademark with no compensation to Evermore because the company is facing "financial difficulties due to the COVID-19 pandemic" and cannot afford to engage in protracted litigation.

94. Defendants' attempts to exploit Evermore's weakened position due to the Coronavirus pandemic is one fact among many that renders this case exceptional.

95. Defendants are realizing tremendous profits from the Evermore Album, which debuted at No. 1 on the Billboard charts, and having sold 720,000 equivalent album units through January 21, 2021.<sup>40</sup>

96. Defendants' revenue for sales under the EVERMORE Trademark is likely to reach tens of millions of dollars.

(Trademark Infringement under 15 U.S.C. § 1114(1))

97. The allegations set forth above are incorporated herein by this reference.

98. EVERMORE is a duly registered trademark owned by Evermore.

99. Defendants have, without Plaintiff's consent, used and continue to use in commerce reproductions, copies, counterfeits, or colorable imitations of the EVERMORE Trademark.

100. Defendants' actions have caused actual confusion, mistake, or deception regarding the source, sponsorship, and/or affiliation of Defendants' goods and services.

101. Defendants' actions are likely to cause confusion, mistake, or deception in violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1114(1).

102. A likelihood of confusion is determined based upon: (1) the degree of similarity between the marks; (2) the intent of the alleged infringer in using the mark; (3) evidence of actual confusion; (4) similarity of products and manner of marketing; (5) the degree of care likely to be exercised by purchasers; and (6) the strength or weakness of the mark. Sally Beauty Co. v. Beautyco, Inc., 304 F.3d 964, 972 (10th Cir. 2002) (citing King of the Mountain Sports, Inc. v. Chrysler Corp., 185 F.3d 1084, 1089-90 (10th Cir. 1999)).

103. With regard to the first factor, the EVERMORE Trademark Registrations are identical phonetically and in appearance and meaning to the EVERMORE Trademark used by Defendants. As such, the first factor strongly weighs in Plaintiff's favor.<sup>41</sup>

104. With regard to the second factor, the EVERMORE Trademark Registrations constitute constructive notice of Plaintiff's claim of ownership of the EVERMORE Trademark. 15 U.S.C. § 1072 ("Registration of a mark on the principal register provided by this chapter or under the Act of March 3, 1881, or the Act of February 20, 1905, shall be constructive notice of the registrant's claim of ownership thereof.”).

<sup>41</sup> 4 J. Thomas McCarthy, MCCARTHY ON TRADEMARKS AND UNFAIR COMPETITION ("MCCARTHY") § 23:20 (5th ed.) ("Cases where a defendant uses an identical mark on competitive goods hardly ever find their way into the appellate reports. Such cases are "open and shut" and do not involve protracted litigation to determine liability for trademark infringement."); Stone Creek, Inc. v. Omnia Italian Design, Inc., 875 F.3d 426, 436 (9th Cir. 2017), cert. denied, 138 S. Ct. 1984 (2018) ("The slam-dunk evidence of a conceptually strong mark together with the use of identical marks on identical goods is difficult to surmount.").

105. Plaintiff alleges on information and belief that Defendants had actual knowledge of Plaintiff's registration(s) and/or use of the EVERMORE Trademark prior to December 10, 2020.

106. The Court in Sally Beauty states: “[p]roof that a defendant chose a mark with the intent of copying the plaintiff's mark may, standing alone, justify an inference of likelihood of confusion.” Sally Beauty Co., Inc., 304 F. 3d at 973. “One who adopts a mark similar to another already established in the marketplace does so at his peril, because the court presumes that he can accomplish his purpose: that is, that the public will be deceived. All doubts must be resolved against him.” Id.

107. The numerous similarities between Evermore's and Defendants' use of the EVERMORE Trademark point to actual knowledge and copying by Defendants. Those similarities include:

- a. Copying Evermore's unique description (i.e., “escapism,” “epic tales,” etc.);
- b. Misappropriating multiple elements from the Evermore album cover art in the willow music video (i.e., the prominent roots, the opening in the trunk, the purple leaves, etc.); and
- c. Covering each item offered by Evermore, including oddly specific items, in trademark applications including the EVERMORE Trademark (i.e., “ornamental cloth patches”<sup>42</sup> “three-dimensional plastic ornaments,”<sup>43</sup> etc.).

108. As a result of Defendants' constructive knowledge and/or actual knowledge of the EVERMORE Trademark Registrations and disregard of Plaintiff's already established rights, the second factor weighs in Plaintiff's favor.

109. With regard to the third factor, there is evidence of actual confusion, including (1) inquiries from guests at Evermore Park regarding the Evermore Album, (2) substantial fluctuations in Evermore's web traffic on the day the Evermore Album was released, and (3) explicit associations by social media users between Taylor Swift and Evermore.

110. Evidence of actual confusion "is not necessary for a finding of likelihood of confusion, but it bears on the inquiry and is particularly potent." Stone Creek, Inc., 875 F.3d at 433. See also Heartland Animal Clinic, P.A. v. Heartland SPCA Animal Medical Clinic, LLC, 861 F. Supp.2d 1293 (D. Kan. 2012), aff'd, 503 Fed. Appx. 616 (10th Cir. 2012) (granting preliminary injunction and finding timing of dozens of confused customers calling plaintiff just after defendant began heavy advertising campaign "strong" evidence of likely confusion). The currently available evidence of actual confusion weighs strongly in Plaintiff's favor.

111. With regard to the fourth factor, both parties offer clothing and recorded music under the EVERMORE Trademark.

112. Evermore offers "live visual and audio performances by an actor" under the EVERMORE Trademark, and Taylor Swift is likely to begin offering "live visual and audio performances by an actor" under the EVERMORE Trademark to promote the Evermore album.

113. Both parties focus their marketing on the Internet, including through the use of social media.

114. Both parties offer many of the same goods and services and use the same channels to market their respective goods and services, and, accordingly, the fourth factor weighs in Plaintiff's favor.

115. With regard to the fifth factor, it is well established that "the price level of the goods or services is an important factor in determining the amount of care the reasonably prudent buyer will use." MCCARTHY at § 23:95.

116. The cost of the clothing and music sold by both parties under the EVERMORE Trademark is relatively low, and none of the recognized classes of specialized consumers are relevant, and, accordingly, the fifth factor either weighs in Plaintiff's favor as the senior user<sup>44</sup> or is neutral.

117. With regard to the sixth factor, Plaintiff's EVERMORE Trademark is an arbitrary trademark because it neither suggests nor describes any ingredient, quality, or characteristic of Plaintiff's goods or services.

118. Plaintiff's EVERMORE Trademark has been extensively promoted and has been featured in promotions that have garnered more than 25,000,000 views online.

119. Plaintiff has welcomed 142,784 guests to Evermore Park. Exhibit A, Dec. of Ken Bretschneider at ¶ 4.

120. Plaintiff has expended $635,421 in advertising and promoting the EVERMORE Trademark, in addition to Plaintiff's expenditure of $300,000 to purchase the domain name EVERMORE.COM.

121. The combination of Plaintiff's efforts to promote the EVERMORE Trademark and the inherent distinctiveness of the EVERMORE Trademark establish that the EVERMORE Trademark is strong, and, accordingly, the sixth factor weighs in Plaintiff's favor.<sup>45</sup>

122. By committing the acts alleged herein, Defendants have intentionally, knowingly, and willfully infringed Plaintiff's EVERMORE Trademark.

123. Plaintiff has been irreparably harmed in its business as a result of Defendants' infringement.

124. Plaintiff has lost control over its reputation as a result of Defendants' actions.

125. Defendants' use of explicit lyrics and marketing of goods using vulgar terms (e.g., the "fancy shit" mug) are inconsistent with Plaintiff's use of the EVERMORE Trademark and marketing efforts.

126. Plaintiff will continue to suffer irreparable harm unless Defendants are restrained from infringing Plaintiff's EVERMORE Trademark.

127. As a result of Defendants' intentional, knowing, and willful counterfeiting of Plaintiff's EVERMORE Trademark in connection with clothing, Plaintiff is entitled to statutory damages of "not more than $2,000,000 per counterfeit mark per type of goods or services sold, offered for sale, or distributed, as the court considers just." 15 U.S.C. § 1117(c)(2).

128. Alternatively, Evermore is entitled to damages, treble damages, statutory damages, and the equitable remedy of an accounting for and a disgorgement of all revenues

<sup>45</sup> Defendants' arguments that the EVERMORE Trademark is weak is both self-serving and inadequate under established precedent. MCCARTHY at § 11:76 ("Even weak marks are entitled to protection against subsequent registration or use by another for a very closely similar mark on closely competitive goods or services. As the predecessor court to the Federal Circuit remarked: 'Confusion is confusion. The likelihood thereof is to be avoided, as much between 'weak' marks as between 'strong' marks, or as between a 'weak' and a 'strong' mark.'").

130. Plaintiff and its predecessors in interest have used the EVERMORE Trademark in connection with Evermore's goods and services in U.S. commerce since at least April 17, 2014.

131. As a result of the continued use and sale by Evermore of products and services under the EVERMORE Trademark and as a result of the experience, care, and service of Plaintiff, EVERMORE has become associated with Plaintiff's products and services.

132. Among other things, Plaintiff has offered recorded music in digital format under the EVERMORE Trademark.

133. Plaintiff has distributed its music recordings through the same outlet (i.e., Apple Media) as music offered by Taylor Swift under the EVERMORE Trademark.

134. Defendants have announced their intent to adopt the EVERMORE Trademark or confusingly similar variations thereof, in connection with other goods offered by Plaintiff, including "ornamental cloth patches,"<sup>46</sup> "three-dimensional plastic ornaments,"<sup>47</sup> "purses," "all-purpose carrying bags," "key wallets," and "key pouches."<sup>48</sup>

136. Defendants' acts are likely to cause, and have caused and will continue to cause, confusion as to the source or sponsorship of Defendants' advertisements, products, and services.

137. Defendants' acts constitute willful infringement of Plaintiff's exclusive rights in the EVERMORE Trademark in violation of the common law.

138. By reason of Defendants' actions, Plaintiff has suffered irreparable harm. Unless Defendants are restrained from further infringement of the EVERMORE Trademark, Plaintiff will continue to suffer irreparable harm.

139. Plaintiff has no remedy at law that will adequately compensate for the irreparable harm it will suffer if Defendants' conduct is allowed to continue.

140. As a consequence of Defendants' actions, Plaintiff has suffered damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

THIRD CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Unfair Competition under Utah Code Ann. § 13-5a-102)

143. Subsequent to Plaintiff's adoption and use of the EVERMORE Trademark, Defendants began using the EVERMORE Trademark to promote their goods and services.

144. Defendants' conduct has caused actual confusion in the marketplace regarding the relationship between Plaintiff and Defendants and the source, origin, and sponsorship of Defendants' goods and services.

145. Defendants engaged in unfair competition in commerce under Utah statutory law, resulting in damages to Plaintiff, including the loss of goodwill and reputation, and, unless enjoined, will cause further irreparable injury, for which Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

146. Plaintiff is entitled to judgment against Defendants for recovery of its damages, costs, and attorney fees, and if the Court determines that the circumstances are appropriate, punitive damages, pursuant to Utah Code Ann. § 13-5a-103.
